

Ascom DUR Ae.page Product Sheet

An alarm generation and emergency response management interface that allows response coordinators to generate alerts and monitor the response efforts of staff in an emergency event.

DUR Ae.page enables quick and efficient alert generation through the use of customised emergency buttons that are organised into multi-layered groups.

Through the use of the Emergency Monitoring Interface, stakeholders are able to monitor the situation and the status of the emergency response.

Pre-defined
emergency message

Emergency recipient group

Monitoring with presence indicator

Escalation
management

Key features

- Emergency button groups
- Fully configurable emergency buttons
- Visual message acknowledgment interface
- Automatic and manual message generation
- Fully configurable recipient groups
- Emergency escalation
- Presence indication

Each emergency button can be customised to meet different level of emergencies, displaying the minimum required number of staff which is required to attend the specific alert and the current available staff number.

Alerts can be escalated to additional staff through the Emergency Monitoring Interface. An escalation may be required if staff members are available to respond to the active emergency.

Emergency button groups

The emergency button group can group emergency buttons together into logical groups.

The button groups section displays all the button groups which the logged-in DURAsuite user is permitted to see.

Each button group contains one or more emergency buttons and/or button groups

Emergency button

The emergency button is used to generate a message to all staff responsible for responding to the specific emergency.

An individual emergency button is created for each type of emergency. Multiple emergency buttons can be activated at the same time.

All emergency buttons activated can be seen within the Current Alarms section within the DURAsuite user interface.

Ascom Australia
2C Ground Floor, Building 2,
41-43 Bourke Rd
Alexandria NSW 2015.
Phone: + 02 9698 9000
ascom.com.au

ascom